Summary

- Today I focused on the CTF challenged. Once the CTF ends I will upload my notes and all other programs and other information needed for the ctf.
- I was able to solve the first very easy challenge fairly easy mainly because it was related to some of the other challenges I have done recently.
- I liked this challenge because it introduced me to some brute forcing techniques.
- I created a C program to help with it.
- I tried many of the other challenges
- I could not get the tunnel challenge but I learned a lot trying to do it which I felt pretty accomplished. The tricky part is creating a maze solver. I have never done this before.
- The rust challenge was really interesting. I tried stepping through it with gdb but my knowledge in rust was very limited.
- I just started the hard challenge. I figured that even if I don't solve the challenges i could still be learning a lot by doing them.
